

Remarks

Applicant amended claims 1,9, and cancelled claim 7, to address the Examiner's comments.

Independent claims 1,9 were amended to clarify further the thickness range of the third conductor. The third conductor has a thickness which separates the first conductor from the second conductor by a distance in a range of approximately three microns to approximately four microns. Such distance, in combination with the other elements of Applicant's invention (amended claim 1 or 9), is neither anticipated nor rendered obvious by either Zhao, Wen or Johnson, or any other cited art, whether applied singly or in combination.

To the extent that any art rejection continues to be applied against claim 1 or 9, as amended, or any other remaining claims, reconsideration is respectfully requested. Applicant believes neither Zhao, Wen, Johnson nor Ito, whether applied either singly or in combination teaches, discloses or suggests a third electrical conductor having a thickness separating the first and second conductors by a distance in a range of approximately three microns to approximately four microns, let alone such thickness in combination with the remaining elements of amended claim 1 or 9.

Contrary to Applicant's invention, the cited art is devoid of such thickness range for the third conductor. Applicant respectfully disagrees with the Examiner that such thickness (in combination with the remaining elements of amended claim 1 or 9) would be the result of routine skill. If it were the result of routine skill, the Examiner should be able easily to locate a reference which discloses such thickness for the third conductor. Applicant believes the Examiner has brought no such reference to Applicant's attention.

Applicant believes any art rejection is overcome.

Entry of the Amendment, and passage of this application to issue are respectfully requested.
